A small but talented group of specialist gathered at the Ravenscroft School Stadium field in Raleigh, NC on June 19th. Special Teams Solutions, with the help of local division one college player Corey Tedder (NC State Long-Snapper), ran the event. As temperatures approached the mid 90's, the competition on the field heated up as well.

Brady Harrington '10 of Richland (NC) high school showed everyone why he is a legitimate division one prospect. Harrington struck the ball extremely well and generated great height on his field goals, connecting on 7 of 10 attempts with a long of 52 yards. Harrington's kickoffs, however, are what ultimately set him apart by averaging nearly 60 yards and 4.1 hang time with a one inch tee. He also finished first in punting with a near 36 yard / 4.3 second hang time average per punt. Robert Schick of Hunt (NC) high school was right there in the mix after hitting 9 of 10 field goals with a long of 47 yards off the ground. The 2009 high school graduate also averaged 59 yards / 3.7 hang time per kickoff. Michael Mugler '10 of First Colonial (VA) high school also showed tremendous accuracy and consistency by making 9 of 10 field goals with a long of 47 yards from a one inch tee.

Rounding out the combine was a standout class of 2011 long snapping prospect. Curtis Struyk of West Carteret (NC) high school showed good zip and accuracy on field goal snaps by averaging .48 per short snap. Further, his ability to get the laces out will make him an asset to any college program. The 6'0 220 lbs. Struyk also averaged .82 seconds per long snap from the college distance of 14 yards.
